Employer Spotlight: New Hampshire State Police - How to be a Linguist

Tuesday, October 11, 2016 6:00:00 PM EDT - 7:30:00 PM EDT

The law enforcement industry provides many different opportunities for you to protect and serve your country. If you believe in the rule of law that defines civilized societies and you believe in ensuring that victims of crime receive the justice that they deserve, and have a background in Engineering, IT, Education, Sociology, Criminal Justice, Marine Biology, Finance, Nursing, or are working towards a degree in another major, please continue reading this narrative, as your choice of degree is of value to public safety.

Join us Tuesday, October 11th at 6pm ET to find out how you can become a linguist with the New Hampshire State Police.

If you speak a foreign language or possess another technical skill, your abilities can also be contributed to the greater good and will reflect positively on you. If you possess some of the aforementioned qualities and if you are committed to service then you now know that you are exactly the type of person that should consider becoming a member of the New Hampshire State Police. This webinar is the first of a three part series that will showcase the specialized attributes, technical skills, and opportunities that are available within our organization as a Linguist with the New Hampshire State Police. This Employer Spotlight will introduce you to some of the linguists who wear the uniform of the NH State Police, the languages that they speak, their countries of origin, and how their language abilities allow them to serve the public at the highest level.

We look forward to seeing you there!
