Dear Governor's Task Force on Police Accountability,

I would like to announce my presence, concerns, and work that I have done on this topic. My foremost concern is that there is no formal ethical training, initially or during continuing education. I also feel strongly that positive change will not come from within the police organizations. I hope to inspire proactive procedures.

I wrote a book: "A Cop in a Small City: Examining Mission and Integrity."

<http://www.newmansprings.com/release/?book=a-cop-in-a-small-city-examining-mission-and-integrity> It is a collection of actual police stories often with an analysis of the results. I also wrote about some serious police misconduct and how the organization turned on me for reporting it.

I have also prepared two slide presentations that are attached:

Mission and Integrity

Proactive Police Procedures

They are intended to be vehicles of discussion and not all inclusive. I intend to use them if invited to make such presentations before police or other organizations.

Lastly, no officer should be on a Laurie's list. If they are, I wonder why they remain employed or at least have a plan to restore credibility.
